Lone U. S. 'Fortress' Riddled by 7 Nazi Planes But Returns

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

LONDON, Sept. 2.-The first of Britain's big Americanmade Fortress bombers to be tackled by German interceptors came through a seven-plane assault, battered and *moking, some of the crew dead and others wounded, and returned to Britain, with its mission fulfilled.

The official account of the test was made public tonight - an elaboration of a brief report of the dogfight that ensued August 16 when one of the winged Fortresses carried out a high altitude bombardment of the German battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau at Brest, France.

The Air Ministry news service, which carried the account, said that the Fortress flew at less than the "full ceiling" which is the substratosphere at between 30,000 and 40,000 feet-thus indicating that the five Messerschmitt-109F's and two Heinkel-113's were benefitted by the denser air at the lower altitude.

Not many pursuit planes can achieve, for operations, the extreme ceiling of the air-borne Fortresses.

ceiling, the bomber crossed the channel," said the news

"Near Brest the bomber was separated from the rest of the detachment. . . . It flew on, attacked and returned by itself. . . .

"Not all the crew saw the bombs burst, but the firecontroller, a flight sergeant who is now recovering from his wounds in a hospital, saw one bomb out of a stick burst on the quay just beside one of the battle cruisers. He did not see the other bursts."

Antiaircraft shells were bursting all around the big

"Three minutes after the bombs had gone, the fire-controller-it's his job to stand with his head in the astro-hatch and watch every part of the sky-saw two Heinkel 113's coming out from a light cloud about a thousand feet below the Fortress and slightly to starboard," the story continued.

"They were joined almost at once by five Messerschmftt-109F's. All the fighters appeared to come from the same quarter of the sky. Their arrival was so prompt that it was obvious that they had come from a standing patrol.

"The fighters made many attacks from both sides and from dead astern. Two of the Fortress's gunners and the wireless operator were severely wounded. In spite of his wounds the wireless operator continued to signal to his base. The captain swung the bomber quickly from side to side and dived-now fast, now slow.

"Down came all the fighters after him, firing all the while. The Fortress's No. 4 petrol tank was punctured and the crew thought the engine had caught fire. As one of them said, 'There seemed to be no part of the bomber not

"Then when the fight had gone on for 20 minutes the Fortress reached a low patch of cloud and all the enemy fighters broke away. Black smoke was now pouring from the bomber.

"The fighters scarcely had left when the fire-controller, though wounded in the hand and leg, tried to reach the other wounded men. To do so he would have had to walk along the gangway which leads from the pilot's cabin to the

The Horsemen Are Riding

When Adolf Hitler ordered the attack against Poland, he turned loose upon the world those dread four horsemen of the Apocalypse. The horsemen of death who follow always in the trail of those who would conquer by force of arms. The horsemen who reap helpless human lives like sheaves of ripe wheat before the binder.

Today, in stricken areas beneath the heel of the Nazi conqueror, the last two of the storied horsemen, famine and pestilence, are riding full gallop into the feast of death.

News reports tell of the Rumanian people, starying in their erstwhile land of plenty. The destruction wreaked by the Nazi blitzkrieg destroyed great areas of productivity there and, to add to their hunger, the Germans have seized and taken vast quantities of what remains for the feeding of their own people and their own armies. And now the Rumanian army, like enslaved mercenaries, is in the field, too, against Russia and further drains upon the staples of human necessity are being felt.

It is reported today that tens of thousands of wretched Rumanians, helpless men, women and children, are perishing of sheer starvation. Vegetables are so costly that only the richest can buy a mere handful and the wheat that should become bread is not there. And, always on the heels of the horse of famine, the horse of pestilence rides fast. Cholera, typhoid and other dread plagues are ravaging the people. Hungary is little better off and the heroic people of Greece, never rich in agriculture, are dying like flies under the despised eyes of their Italian foes.

As for Czechoslovakia, conditions there are scarcity of food, most of the water in that unhappy land is tainted. During the ravaging of the land of the Czechs, it is stated, the Luftwaffe destroyed most of the water systems in the cities and the result today is a plague of typhoid that is killing the people wholesale.

On the other side of Europe there are reports of terrible scarcity of food because of the seizure, by the Germans, of the population's normal supplies. Too, the Germans have killed many of the farm workstock, so that there are not animals left to work the crops.

They have, likewise, destroyed the cattle of Holland, of Belgium, of northern France, the beef stock and the milk cows and the hogs. And in these once rich lands there is no food, no way of growing any and the people hunger,

The four horsemen were turned loose, two years ago, by Adolf Hitler.

And, perhaps yet dimly, we hear the hoofbeats of the fifth horseman, Revolution, riding hard on the trail of horror, to bring retribution to the Nazis and, through blood and suffering and death, at last to free the enslaved nations of distraught Europe.

No man, no matter how vast his dreams of conquest nor how farseeing his plans for war, can escape the eventual fate that rides upon the saddle-bows of the ruthless four and their nemesis. Revolution.

They Are Linked

In a recent news story the dual information was given that Fulton county building permits this year are already above the entire total for 1940 and that marriage licenses for August soared well above the number issued the same month a year ago.

There is, in all probability, a direct connection between the two figures. For, in most cases, a newlywed couple means the demand for a new house, a new home. And thus the city, the county, the state and the nation grows.

There is significance, too, in the fact that almost all the new residential building permits are for location in the country, beyond the city limits. The coming of the automobile has so lessened distance, as measured in time, there is no longer need for the city worker to live within the restricted confines of the city itself.

He can create for himself and his family a home far from the smoke of factory chimneys, with combined advantages of urban conveniences and rural surroundings.

The day is coming, as predicted by H. G. Wells, when there will be no cities, as we know them today, merely centers of industry with the homes of the workers scattered throughout the

At Face Value

If the governments or peoples of the Axis powers-Germany, Italy and Japan-are tempted to dismiss the statements made by Labor Day speakers in the United States as mere rhetoric, they will fool nobody save themselves. For those speakers, including President Roosevelt and the leaders of organized labor, spoke only the will of the vast majority of Americans when they said this nation was determined, and dedicated, to see that the "rule or ruin dictators" shall be eliminated from President Roosevelt told Adolf Hitler, in his speech from Hyde Park, that the United States is unalterably committed to the defeat of Nazi Germany and is prepared to go to any lengths to accomplish that end. The overwhelming majority of Americans are with him all the way, prepared to sacrifice, to give, to fight if necessary, that freedom shall come again to little peoples and that the fearful menace of a Nazi controlled world shall be removed from this country's horizon.

Leaders of both the CIO and the AFL called upon the workers to speed the output of defense and war materials, while the response of labor was evidenced when many factories, working on defense production, kept running despite the holiday, on the voluntary plea of their

Adolf Hitler, Benito Mussolini and the military clique in Japan should note and remember. if they are not blinded by self-delusion, that all the might of this great country, industrial power, raw resources, organization ability, and, if need be, fighting manpower is arrayed

On this one issue the nation is becoming daily more united. It is awakening to the urgency of the crisis, slowly, perhaps, as becomes a democracy. But, when at last united, all the world combined cannot withstand the power of the free people of the United States.

Gainesville's Forward Step

News comes from Gainesville that a "Fair and Market building" is being erected on a 15acre tract near that city. A fair is to be held beginning October 20.

There is no special "new" news in this statement, inasmuch as approximately 100 counties hold fairs in Georgia every fall.

But the news item also says: "After the fair closes, the booths will be removed to convert the building into a huge market, wherein market days are to be held at least once a month, later to be increased to semi-monthly.

"Sales days will be devoted principally to livestock, grain and farm tools, with possibly some poultry sales, for the present time."

Fourteen counties in the Gainesville area have co-operated in raising the money to erect the building and will participate in the fair and later in the market.

This means that, in addition to its alreadybuilt-up annual $250,000 broiler market, Gainesville is taking another forward step. And one that will likely soon result in the market not being open just once a month, or just once a week, but it will be necessary to keep it open six and maybe seven 'ays a week. Farmers in fourteen counties co-operating in this project will likely assure its success and a move has been made that will mean a better farming program in northeast Georgia, because an outlet for what they grow will be afforded by this new market project.

Spur lines will also tap the resources of Kansas and Oklahoma and southern Illinois fields.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

LINDBERGH'S FATUITY WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—The latest excursion of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh in the field of international relations serves to illustrate not only the shallow depth of isolationist thinking, but also the apparent willingness of isolationist elements to advance any argument, however half-baked, in support of their views. In a flight of fancy found in his recent Oklahoma City address, the flying colonel sought to arouse American public sentiment against the British aid program by saying it was not inconceivable that, before the war was over, Great Britain would turn against the United States "as she has turned against France and Finland."

NOT BRITISH ACTION Anyone except the most confirmed isolationist is able to see that the action which estranged the British from the governments of France and Finland came from those governments themselves.

The French government, surrounded on all sides by Hitler's victorious troops, disregarded a solemn pact it had with the British, pledging both parties against making a separate peace. eleventh hour, also, it spurned an offer to salvage the situation by merging both countries. When the fall of the nation was complete, failed to live up to an agreement for turning over the French fleet to the British, making it necessary for the British to fire on and actually sink some of the French naval units to prevent them from getting into German hands. Thenceforward the Vichy government proceeded to develop a policy of collaboration with Hitletr's new European order.

In the case of Finland, there was no change in the relations between that country and Britain even after the Finns, for that are easily understandable, began to collaborate with Germany against Russia. Its government took the initiative in severing diplomatic relations, withdrawing the Finnish minister from London and asking the British to do likewise.

THE KNOWN FACTS In the light of these known facts, there is no more basis for the Lindbergh statement that Britain has turned on France and Finland than there would be in the assertion that she has turned on Noror Denmark, or Belgium, or Holland, or Greece and all the rest of the countries overrun and now occupied by German forces The intellectual dishonesty of the colonel's shallow reasoning is found in the implications of his statement that in turning against the French and Finnish governments, the British have also turned against the people of these countries. This is a complete travesty. He could not have heard Prime Minister Churchill's world broadcast of the previous Sunday and gained any such conviction. Neither could be be familiar with all the upheaval that is going on in France today, epitomized by sabotage and the attempted assassination of former Premier Laval, the No. 1 Quisiling of France.

There is no gainsaying the fact that the great masses of the people in German-occupied regions of Europe are fervently praying for a British victory over Hitler, whatever the outward attitude of some of their governmental leaders may be. It is no small part of the pattern of British hopes for ultimate victory to see large segments of these people turn on the Germans and aid in the final blow. To say that the British have turned on these people is utterly ridiculous, of course.

STRANGE YOUNG MAN Colonel Lindbergh, among those who know him, has been rated a strange young man with many complexes ever since he gained world fame as the first person to fly nonstop from New York to Paris. He also has many aversions. Two of the latter are newspapermen and photographers, although he is suspected of thriving on the publicity he continually gets in the columns of newspapers.

Two of his other pet aversions are the British and President His dislike of the British is probably based on his short residence in England, where he went to seek peace after the tragedy of his first child's kidnaping and death. The British, taking him at his word that he did not want to be disturbed, made no fuss over him as we had been accustomed to in this country. He was allowed to walk the streets of London without any bother or gesture of recognition. When he sought to give the British a confidential report on his findings during an inspection of the German and Russian air forces, he was accorded a respectful hearing. It has since been revealed that he felt offended because officials there gave no particular importance to his report. The reason they didn't was because the British government, through its intelligence service, had long before been supplied with far better information on the same subject.

DISLIKES ROOSEVELT Whether Lindbergh ever liked or voted for Roosevelt is not known personally. It does not seem to matter much, in view of the fact that he broke with the President during the early months of Roosevelt administration and has been a consistent critic of all things New Deal ever since then.

The President reciprocates the dislike genuinely and has seemingly taken a delight at times in showing up the fallacy of some of Lindbergh's half-baked ideas. The reference to appeasers and Nazi sympathizers in his Sunday broadcast to the nation was generally accepted as being aimed at the once reticent but now voluble

The opinions expressed by Mr. Pegler in this column are his own and do not necessarily represent the opinion of The Atlanta Constitution.

NEW YORK, Sept. Servant Of Toilers you another chapter in the unfinished story of a selfless servant of the humble toiler who obtained an international charter as well as a whole sheaf, or deck, of local charters in the American Federationu of Labor, acquired a racing stable and died about a year ago under bond for $275,000 to the United States government to secure an income tax deficiency and the pentinent penalties and interest amounting in all to $250,000.

Mrs. Julie Carrozzo, the widow of Mike Carrozzo and administratrix of the estate of that consecreated leader of the humble white - wings, cabbage - handlers and pavement workers in Chicago, has carried the income tax case to the board of tax appeals, where is now pending. This legal action breaks the seal of confidence which normally protects the intimacies of the tax return except in the case of obstreperous citizens who oppose the politics of President Roosevelt and find selves singled out, individually, for punishment. By carrying her case to the board of tax appeals, Mrs. Carrozzo has made available the press as public documents all the data which the Treasury Department has collected.

$2,000. This material shows that Mike reported a net of $50,681 for the year 1937 and $51,555 for 1938, thus admitting net income of approximately $1,000 a week for each of those years derived from the union racket and that, as an after-thought he admitted and paid the tax on an additional $52,000 net for 1937 which increased his admitted net income for that year to $102,681, or a little less than $2,000 a week. On May 28 of this year, Mrs. Carrozzo paid $163,300, but under protest, toward the deficiency and penalties of $250,000 claimed by the Treasury and the pending proceedings before the board of tax appeals in Chicago includes a demand for the refund of this amount on the ground that it was not legally due. Among the deductions which Carrozzo listed were losses incurred in the mainenance of his racing stable. It is the government's claim that

ONE WORD MORE

(During the absence of Ralph McGill on vacation, his colum is being conducted by guest writers. William S. Howland, head of the TIME and LIFE editorial office in Atlanta, writes today's column.)

TWO MEN AND A CAVE Some 16 years ago, a Kentuckian named Floyd Collins failed to return from exploration of a fissure known as Sand Cave, near Mammoth Cave. Searchers found he was trapped, alive, by a rock far underground. Then began the frantic attempt to rescue this lone, unimportant individual, an attempt in which hundreds participated and of which millions read. To cover this fantastic event, the Nash-ville newspapers sent the biggest reporters in that city. I mean physically biggest. There has been some argument ever since about their mental stature. Cave side, even 16 years ago, they weighed in jointly at around 450 pounds. There was then, and there still is, some argument about who weighs more. But it was obvious that neither could scoop the other by getting inside information from tiny Sand Cave. Their names were Ralph McGill, of the Banner, and W. S. Howland, of the Tennessean.

There is a true story which illustrates the problem of the two behemoths. McGill started off a wire to the Banner as follows: "Went down cave 100 feet today—." Back from Jimmy Stahlman, then the mercurial, razon-keen city editor, came this answer: "Leave Mammoth Cave at once. Proceed to Sand Cave."

The story of the vain attempt to rescue Floyd Collins ranks as. the most fantastic assignment in some 20 years of reporting. Out of it, this reporter got a bad cold, a small bonus, a distaste for Kentucky moonshine, and friendship with Ralph McGill.

THIS MAN, THE McGILL So when Ralph McGill asked for a guest column, this reportdecided to do something he had long wanted to do and about the many-sided, well-rounded personality which is the McGill.

Of course, many One Word More readers have seen the McGill. Pictures generally do him wrong, because, like most newspapermen, he is ill at ease facing the camera. Generally he wears a silly grin or deep scowl in pictures. Neither is truly McGillish. Customary expression of the McGill during business hours is a look of slight worry. That is because he generally is anything from 30 minutes to three hours behind schedule, nearly always because he has allowed someone to impose on him. After business hours, the McGill expression normally is bland. Upon contemplating or beginning a good meal, particularly in New Orleans, the McGill can look happier than anyone else.

A REAL BIG GUY As those personally acquainted with the McGill know, he is a big man physically, broad-shouldered, barrel-bellied, with big head, plenty of space between the eyes, and curly hair which often flops over his eyes. He weighs in now at 225—or so he said Saturday (adding. that he had not weighed in some weeks). Mentally and spiritually, the McGill also is a real big guy.

As many readers know, the McGill's first love in newspapering He came off the Vanderbilt football field to write sports for the Banner, gave to its sports pages a sparkle which few news-papers enjoy. Those were days of intense competition in Nashville. Many pranks were played on the opposing staffs.

One of the most famous of these was played by the McGill and some of his nefarious associates. They locked the entire noble editorial staff of the Tennessean in the little boys' room one Saturday night. Only upon tearful pleading was the city editor allowed to come out as hostage and make terms with the "enemy."

But to resume with our study of the McGill, the man. He can be happier than anyone else, often over the smallest of things. And he can be unhappier than anyone else, generally over some injustice or mishap which has befallen a friend. He probably likes people individually and collectively-more sincerely than anyone I know.

McGILL, THE SALAD MAKER The McGill also probably likes to eat better than any six other people. He knows a lot about good eating. That also to Nashville days. In that city then was an old Frenchman, Emile Faucon, who ran one of the really fine restaurants of America. One day we all were shocked to see on the door a sign. It read, "I Am Tired-Emile Faucon." The McGill knew the old Frenchman well, had learned from him the secret of one of the world's best salads. It's quite an experience to see the McGill make a Faucon salad and then eat it with him. There are lots of other sides to this personality. For example, there is McGill the quail hunter. The McGill aboard a mule, following the dogs in south Georgia, is a sight to make men quail. But even if men were made to quail, they'd be safe before the McGill. Stories are told that the McGill personally has fatally shot a quail but no eyewitnesses have been found. There is also McGill, the ex-Marine. He served with the Marines in the first World did not get overseas, but did get the firm conviction that the Marines are the best soldiers in this or any other world. He and his fellow liberal and fellow ex-Marine, President Frank Graham, of the Uni versity of North Carolina, are the most unliberal of liberals when it comes to ideas about soldiers As those who read One Word More well know, McGill is a liberal I won't go into a discussion of his ideas. He writes and talks about them. But I thought you might like to know some of the things about the McGill about which he won't talk or write. Now this one of the Nashville behemoths is going to leave town before the McGill gets back. After all, he really does still weigh more than 200-by two or three pounds

One Who Wouldn't Help in the Hunt Seemed An Enemy to Fellow Tribesmen

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Doubtless you have heard about the letter written by a Quaker boy conscientious objector back in 1917; describing, without bitterness, the tortures inflicted upon him at Camp Cody.

Have you ever wondered why he was tortured-or why ordinary more brutal than the average, were capable of torturing an innocent kid they never had seen before?

We must look for the answer among primitive men who lived before the beginning of history. We come into the world with an instinct or at least a capacity for tribal loyalty.

Ages ago that loyalty was a matter of self-preservation. The tribe had certain customs, rules and taboos, all developed by experience and necessity, and these formed the standards of right, Conformity to tribal customs was a virtue, and if a member of the tribe did not conform, his heresy was immoral. He was either a lunatic or a menace.

This was necessarily true, for his strange ways challenged the rightness of tribal standards. If he was right, the tribe was wrong. every man could make standards, there would be none. Therefore the safety-of the tribe required that he conform or be destroyed.

As men became more civilized and less necessary to one another. they were allowed freedom of thought; but instinctive feelings have not changed, and one who does not conform to tribal rules, or share current convictions, seems a menace.

So in 1917 the tribal guards said to the heretic: "You claim to right, and thus condemn all of us. You claim to have a more tender conscience and better understanding than we have. And your heresy will keep you safe, while we risk our lives to overcome our common enemy and save your liberties. We must carry a greater burden because you refuse to do your share."

By LEE CARSON.

QUANTICO, Va., Sept. 2. - (INS) - Something new in the way of Marines is in the making. The boys were always known as handy men to have on your team in war or in a street-corner altercation but the new Marine is a super-warrior who can operate with terrifying efficiency on land, sea and in the air.

Monumental buildings rise up here where wooden sheds and shingled barracks stood yester-day. Museums, theaters, a gross of drug stores, libraries and school buildings fringe the drives. Huge hangars and stables and proving grounds are being hastily erected. The khaki-clad boys of the eagleanchor-and-world insignia march down the paved streets with books under their arms as well as rifles over their shoulders.

To those who labored under the impression that the Marines were a bunch of toughies who like Topsy—just kind of grew up somewhere and were equipped with guts and guns and not much else, Quantico comes as a distinct shock. On turning into the modestly marked gates you drive through woods, past golf courses, handsome homes, clubs, apart-ment houses and swimming pools

State Garden Club President Speaks in Covington Today

 WHEN MRS. MURDOCK EQUEN speaks to members of the Covington Garden Club today, her subject, "Gardening and Defense," will provide an interesting topic to her listeners. Mrs. Equen is the popular president of the Garden Club of Georgia and is famed for her enthralling speeches. She believes that a garden is the first line of defense in hard times and that the nearest approach to peace may be found in a garden, and that it is comforting to know that the laws of nature remain unchanged.

Mrs. Equen will tell her listeners that more and more people will be driven into gardens with the rationing of gasoline and the advance in prices. The fact that gardening always is a down-to-

When Helen Boardman and Jim Wimberly take up residence in their already-pickedout apartment on Peachtree road in Atlanta, after their October wedding, Helen can be sure of two things, she won't be so lonesome when Jim is working and she will always be able to borrow a cup of sugar-if she runs out of it, for occu-pying apartments in the same building will be three other young couples who are friends of Helen and Jim, Bobo Spalding, whose engagement has been announced to Wallace Win-Emmelyn Carter and Julian Harrison, newlyweds, and Agnes White and Thomas (Bud-Milner.

For the first time in 17 years, William S. Hart, beloved gunman of the early movies, will have his name on the screen. Bill will be seen in "One Foot in Heaven" in his one-reel, non-talking movie, "The Silent Man," made for Thomas Ince in 1917. It will be used in its entirety. It seems this one-reeler showed how the movies can play an important part in church life. Bill hasn't appeared on the screen since 1925 when he made a movie called "Tumbleweed." I have never heard Jack Warner rave about a picture as tamly affected back through the country. Tough Schedule NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 2.—It was inevitable that one of the first photographic requests was for the Tulane Green Wave to form a "V" for victory. With a bit of reluctance, after thinking over the schedule, the request was granted by Head Coach Lowell (Red) Dawson.

Among Dawson's other concerns this season is the fact that, in meeting Boston College in the opener later this month, there is no chance to use any of the information available from last year's game with the Eagles. Frank Leahy has moved on to Notre Dame and the Eagles are using a new system. B. C. contributed to a terrific Tulane headache last season. The Wave dropped this game, 27 to 7, and the next two to Auburn and Fordham, 20 to 14 and 20 to 7. The season thereafter was fairly successful.

The schedule has hardly been lightened. For, while Fordham, Clemson and Georgia are not being played. Ole Miss, Vanderbilt and New York University have been

Here is what the Green Wave faces in a schedule of Sept. 27-Boston College at New Orleans.

Oct. 4-Auburn at New Orleans.

Oct. 11-Rice at Houston.

Oct. 18-North Carolina at New Orleans. Oct. 25-Ole Miss at New Orleans.

Nov. 1-Vanderbilt at Nashville.

Nov. 8-Alabama at New Orleans.

Nov. 15-New York University at New York.

Nov. 29-L. S. U. at New Orleans. Of these teams, B. C., Auburn, Alabama and L. S. U.

won decisions over Tulane last year. Obviously Tulane would have to be greatly improved over last year to wade through such a schedule unbeaten. Coach Red Dawson is hopeful that the Greenies will be able to do better than break

Still Tough The Wave loses a lot of would-be stars through scholastic difficulties and other dependables via graduation, but emphasis is on experience for the coming season. It is going to be tougher than otherwise for a sophomore to break into the lineup.

Dawson is an advocate of the two-team system and he has plenty of experienced men available. An experienced starting backfield would include Walter McDonald at quarter, Bob Glass and Julian Brignac at halfbacks, and Jimmy Thibaut at fullback.

A top-flight line would include Gordon English and William Brinkman, ends; Harley McCollum and Charles Dufour, tackles; Leonard Stern and Jack Tittle, guards, and Peter Mandich, center.

Other lettermen available include St. John Smith, triple-threat half; Robert Gruuh, quarter; Thomas Glass, quarter; James Ely, half; Lou Thomas, half; John Sims, half: William Hornick and Harold Mullin, ends: Ernest Blandin, tackle; Henri Wolbrette and John Owens, guards. Lawrence Rice is a crack center prospect coming up.

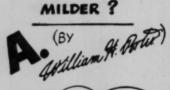

Another potential star in the making is Joe Cies, fullback. But, of course, he may play second fiddle to Thibaut, a human thunderbolt. A hard-hitting senior, Thibaut is considered of All-America caliber.

Red Dawson and a staff which is purely of Tulane origin have limited candidates to half a hundred, which is about 10 or more players short of the usual Tulane squad. But, of course, these 50 are all potential players. In other words, they weren't invited for practice just because they are right fraternally.

There would have been half a dozen other fine prospects out except for scholastic bust-outs. Excellent backs such as Royal Mayon, Allen Delaney, Bill Bellamy and

Grant Upsets Gardnar Mulloy Wins in Straight Sets; Plays Schroeder

NEW YORK, Sept. 2 .- (P)-Bryan Grant Jr., of Atlanta, con-tennis championships out on Long Island.

As today's contribution toward lifting an otherwise dull tournament out of the doldrums, the southern veteran knocked the socks off big Gardnar Mulloy, of Miami, the eighth seeded star, by the quick scores of 6-3, 6-3, 6-2. The upset came just in time to prevent the seeded men players from going into tomorrow's quarter-final round with ranks un-broken. Maybe Grant resents the fact that the tournament committee took him at his word about retiring. Against Mulloy today he bore a striking resemblance to a little fellow named Grant who unexpectedly stiffened the defending champion, Ellsworth Vines, in the chimpionships here nine years ago, He knocked the ball back, as always, and permitted Mulloy to make the errors. Grant scored only 10 points by placements in the three sets, which probably gives the clearest idea of what happened. Former Men's Champion Bobby Riggs trounced Charles Olewine in straight sets, 6_s 3, 6-3, 6-2. Bobby has told intimates he doesn't intend to drop a set through the finals. His quarter-final hand effectively today in vanquishing Billy Gillespie, of Atlanta, Grant next bumps into Ted Schroeder, of Glendale, Cal., coholder of the National doubles title with John Kramer. The other four quarter-finalists, Frank Kovacs, Don McNeill, Wayne Sabin and John Kramer, won their berths yesterday.

If Dawson should happen to break out with a team that throws passes with the success to combine with a running attack that always is good, another conference flag might wave over Tulane.

The Georgia Wildlife Federation yesterday completed plans for the celebration of Wildlife Week, September 22-29, and added one member to the board of directors and three to the advisory board.

T. R. Spivey, of Swainsboro, one door Club, was named to the directorate and three of the coun-more on first-year men than at any time in recent years.

But there are some nice looking boys up from the freshman squad and the general outlook is for a strong first eleven, but few capable reserves.

Of course, there's many a slip between the cup and the lip and a lot of things can happen before the Techs tackle a tough 10-game schedule. Injuries alone can wreck the whole picture. In fact, a run of hurts like the Jackets had last year can be disastrous.

McHUGH AND RYCKELEY Probably the surest bets among a host of potentially strong sophomores are Pat McHugh, a speedy wingback who can also hold his own in just about any punting league, and Ed Ryckeley, husky 10-second guard candidate.

These two lads seem to have the stuff and are sure to see a lot of service before Santa Claus pays his visit again.
